

News item 9th Feb 2009

We have now designed a new sealing system for our eurosash, the new system includes for extra sealing to 12 different locations within our window. The new parts or seals which we have designed exclusively for our eurosash have been tested by us in a mock air leakage test rig, with very pleasing results.

We are currently working with some suppliers to get exact machined parts and seals manufactured to our design so that we can use them in full production.

In order for us to determine exactly how effective the sealing system is we need to send a window for testing in a UKAS accredited testing laboratory. We have a window in production and will send it for a fully certified test early next month.